9/11 Transcripts Made Public

NEW YORK | After a plane struck the first World Trade Center tower on Sept. 11, 2001, callers from the top floors of the neighboring tower were told by police to remain where they were.

The transcripts of phone calls and radio transmissions made by Port Authority employees inside the Twin Towers were released Thursday, providing the first look at the extraordinarily difficult decisions faced by occupants of the towers and Port Authority personnel as they struggled to respond to the attack.

Last week, a judge ordered the Port Authority to release the transcripts at the request of The New York Times.

The transcripts elicited mixed emotions among family members; some were angered by their release while others believed they will be helpful in trying to determine what happened. (AP)

N. Korea Promises Nuke Test

U.S. reaffirms intention to see weapons eliminated

WASHINGTON | Rejecting U.S. disarmament demands, North Korea said Thursday it will prove to the world that it possesses nuclear weapons by carrying out a nuclear test, a U.S. government official said.

At a six-nation meeting in China that included the United States, North Korean Deputy Foreign Minister Kim Yong Il also said, according to the U.S. official, that his country has the means to deliver nuclear weapons, an apparent reference to its highly-developed missile program.

The State Department declined comment except to reiterate that the U.S. goal is to focus on "the complete, verifiable and irreversible elimination" of North Korea's nuclear program.

Wie Sung-rak, director-general of the South Korean Foreign Ministry's North American Affairs Bureau, injected a positive note, saying more talks probably will be held after current talks end Friday.

U.S. intelligence has not found signs that North Korea is preparing a nuclear test, said a U.S. defense official, speaking on condition of anonymity. But such a test would presumably be underground, so preparatory work would be difficult to detect.

Hybrid Theory

Officials at a Japanese safari park are heralding the birth of what's believed to be the world's only living "zenkey" — the rare offspring of a zebra and a donkey. Osamu Ishikawa, deputy head of the Nasu Safari Park near Tokyo, said the baby's stripes were a surprise. "A donkey was pregnant and everybody was expecting a donkey foal," he told Agence France-Presse. The public will get a peek starting next week. (EXPRESS)

Beware of Flying Fish

A fisheries biologist in St. Louis had a filling knocked out of his tooth after he was beamed by a high-flying fish while motoring across a river. Officials say that's just one of several tales of the carp that invaded Missouri's waterways after escaping from private fish hatcheries. "The sound of a propeller under water makes these fish go crazy," Brian Todd of the Missouri Department of Conservation said. (AP)

A Curious George

There's a new George Bush in the world, and he lives in Baghdad. In a move they said was a show of appreciation, parents Nadia Jergis Mohammed and Abdul Kader Faris named their son, now six weeks old, after the American president. "It was only George Bush who liberated us. Without him it wouldn't have happened," Mohammed said. Baby Bush weighed in at 7 pounds, 11 1/2 ounces. Calls Show Chaotic 9/11 Moments Inside WTC

NEW YORK | According to transcripts made public Thursday, a male caller from the 92nd floor of the second tower told a Port Authority police officer, "We need to know if we need to get out of here, because we know there's an explosion."

"I would wait 'til further notice," the officer replied.

"OK, all right," the caller said. "Don't evacuate." He then hung up. A second, similar call — with the same police response — came in a short time after the 8:46 a.m. crash in the first tower.

No one in the top floors of the tower survived after the second plane hit around the 80th floor shortly after 9 a.m.

The evacuation of 2 World Trade Center — and when it began — has been a source of some anguish to relatives of those who died. However, Port Authority officials say their employees did the best they could under horrific circumstances. SARA KUGLER (AP)

Lone survivor of Chicago warehouse attack describes scene

CHICAGO | Eduardo Sanchez had just arrived at the auto-parts warehouse where he worked when he heard a familiar voice behind him, offering a choice:

"Do you want me to tie you up, or do you want to die?"

The voice belonged to Salvador Tapia, a co-worker who had been fired six months earlier.

"I said, 'Tie me up.' I didn't want to die," said Sanchez.

In an interview Thursday, a day after Tapia's rampage, Sanchez described a nightmare scene of bodies and blood, and told of the guilt he felt at not being able to warn his co-workers at Windy City Core Supply.

Tapia used a piece of rope to tie Sanchez to a railing, where he was

Dozens Arrested in Drug Cartel Bust

ATLANTA — More than 50 members of a cartel believed to be responsible for up to a third of the drugs smuggled from Mexico to the United States have been captured across the South in the last week, authorities said Thursday.

More than 25,000 pounds of marijuana, 575 pounds of cocaine and 26 pounds of methamphetamine were seized and 51 people were arrested in Georgia, Tennessee and Texas since last Thursday. About $3.4 million was also seized.

Atlanta was the main distribution point for drugs arriving from McAllen, Texas, on the Mexican border, U.S. Attorney William Duffey said. The suspects stored drugs in Atlanta and distributed them into other Southern states and the East Coast, he said. (AP)

Race Still a Factor at U-Mich.

Revised policy gives highest priority to academic achievement

ANN ARBOR, MICH. | The University of Michigan unveiled a new undergraduate admissions policy Thursday that gives the highest priority to academic achievement, but also retains race as a factor, in an effort to comply with a U.S. Supreme Court ruling.

In a 6-3 ruling in June, the Supreme Court struck down the university's race-conscious point system for undergraduate admissions, which gave a 20-point boost to minority applicants, greater weight than it gave some measures of academic excellence.

The same day it issued that ruling, the high court also issued a 5-4 ruling on the University of Michigan's law school admissions policy saying race can be one factor used to select students, as long as it is not the only factor.

While race remains a factor, the new admissions policy doesn't quantify its contribution and no points will be used.

Academic achievement — including grades, test scores and high school curriculum — are given the highest priority.

Critics, however, have voiced concern that the changes may be more cosmetic than substantive.

Families Reach Settlement in Wellstone Crash

MINNEAPOLIS | Family members of the late Sen. Paul Wellstone and five other passengers killed in an October plane crash reached a $25 million insurance settlement with the company that operated the flight, the families' law firm confirmed Thursday.

In a news release, the Minneapolis firm of Robins Kaplan Miller & Ciresi said its investigation found that pilot error brought down the twin-engine Beechcraft King Air A100 as it approached an airport in Eveleth, Minn. The settlement was made with the flight's operator, Aviation Charter Inc. of Eden Prairie, Minn.

Fla. High Court Chastises Judge For Drunkenness

TALLAHASSEE, FLA. | The Florida Supreme Court reprimanded a judge for getting drunk at a conference and making passes at a woman, saying his actions hurt the reputation of all judges.

Circuit Judge Charles Cope stood silently Thursday as Chief Justice Harry Lee Anstead told him he was guilty of "serious misconduct mandating our public condemnation."

Cope pleaded no contest to public intoxication in the case last summer and was fined $1,000. He returned to the bench last August after a year-long paid leave of absence.

He had faced several misdemeanor charges, including peeping, trespassing and prowling. But he was acquitted of charges he stole a hotel key from two women and tried to enter their room as they slept at the 2001 judicial conference in California. (AP)

U.S. Warms to U.N. Military Role

U.S. soldier killed in attack on convoy south of Baghdad

BAGHDAD | The commander of U.S. forces in Iraq blamed continuing violence on insufficient intelligence and said better cooperation with Iraqis was key.

Lt. Gen. Ricardo Sanchez said he doesn't need more U.S. troops but would welcome forces from other countries as a sign of international commitment to the pacification and rebuilding of Iraq.

Sanchez spoke after a top State

Department official said the White House is now open to the idea of a U.N.-endorsed multinational force in Iraq if it is headed by an American commander.

Deputy Secretary of State Richard Armitage acknowledged that the idea is one of many being considered as the military tries to control the violence four months after Bush declared an end to major combat.

One U.S. soldier was killed Thursday and three were wounded in a roadside bombing in Fallujah, 30 miles west of Baghdad. STEVEN R.

Peru Civil War Report Submitted

Commission's report on brutal conflict says nearly 70,000 died

LIMA, PERU | A final report on Peru's brutal 20-year war against the Shining Path insurgency concluded that nearly 70,000 people were killed, and that military officers responsible for many of those deaths committed massive human rights abuses, an official said Thursday.

The Truth and Reconciliation Commission's nine-volume report, delivered to the government Thursday, said the conflict was exacerbated by deep racism and a fundamental misunderstanding of the highland Indians who comprised most of the victims.

Commissioner Gasten Garatea said the names of more than 100 officers incriminated in human rights abuses and the evidence against them will be given to prosecutors.

The 12-member Truth and Reconciliation Commission was formed in June 2001 to shed light on the atrocities that occurred from May 1980 to November 2000 during the fighting between government security forces, leftist rebels and civilians. Most of the battles happened in remote Andean areas.

Blair Forcefully Denies BBC Charges

P.M. testifies at inquiry into weapons adviser's death

LONDON | Prime Minister Tony Blair denied Thursday that the government "sexed up" a dossier on Iraq's weapons threat, and said he would have resigned if it had been true.

Blair was testifying at a judicial inquiry into the apparent suicide of David Kelly, a weapons expert named as the source of a BBC story that said the government knowingly exaggerated the Iraqi threat in the September dossier.

Blair said the BBC story attacked his integrity and led Britons to believe that his government duped them as the U.S.-led coalition built its case to invade Iraq.

Among other charges, the May 29 BBC report said Blair's aides inserted a claim into the dossier on Iraq's biological and chemical weapons saying they could be deployed in 45 minutes. The BBC report said the government knew the claim was false and some intelligence agents had disputed it.

Blair, who appeared for nearly two hours at the inquiry, said the government dossier on Iraq's arsenal was based on intelligence sources and was not manipulated for political reasons.

The dispute over the report has knocked Blair's popularity to its lowest levels in his six years in office. THOMAS WAGNER (AP)

WTO Set to Give Poor Countries Access to Drugs

GENEVA | A World Trade Organization group agreed Thursday to allow poor nations access to inexpensive copies of drugs to fight such diseases as AIDS and malaria.

The agreement, expected to be ratified by the entire WTO later Thursday, came as the council on intellectual property settled a key dispute — whether to let developing countries ignore some patent rules in importing drugs from cheaper generic manufacturers.

To satisfy the concerns of the U.S. and its pharmaceutical industry, the document sets out conditions for the use of the measure. (AP)

Palestinians say they will determine if funds support militants

GAZA CITY, GAZA STRIP | Palestinian authorities said Thursday they froze the bank accounts of nine Islamic charities to investigate whether the organizations funnel money to militants — the Palestinians' most striking action yet in a U.S.-sought clampdown on armed groups.

Israel welcomed the decision but threatened tough action after a rocket fired from the Gaza Strip hit near the coastal city of Ashkelon, Hamas's deepest strike yet into Israel.

WASHINGTON | Efforts to restore power to parts of the Washington region after Tuesday's storm continued slowly Thursday.

Pepco, the main company providing electricity to the District of Columbia and its Maryland suburbs, still had nearly 30,000 customers without power Thursday. Montgomery County, Md., bore the brunt with 21,000, followed by 6,000 in Prince George's County, Md., and 3,000 in the District. Some 14,000 BGE customers in Prince George's County remained without power.

Montgomery County, which was forced to shut 33 schools Wednesday, still had 20 closed Thursday. Prince George's County closed three schools Thursday.

Dominion Virginia Power reported 300 customers still out Thursday. MICHAEL W. KAHN (AP)

Mayor: Juvenile System Too Lenient

WASHINGTON | Mayor Anthony A. Williams (D) called Thursday for changes in the juvenile justice system.

Williams

Williams said he wants to make it easier for juveniles charged with serious crimes to be charged as adults, calling the current system too lenient.

"We need to make sure that we are providing the support and the nurturing and rehabilitation for children in trouble, but we also need tough sanctions," Williams said in a WTOP-Radio interview.

Police Chief Charles H. Ramsey declared a crime emergency last week, allowing police commanders to extend schedules and change assignments without notice. (AP)

TRAIN CRASH | DEADLY COLLISION

AFTERMATH: The undercarriage of a dump truck lies on railroad tracks after an Amtrak train collided with the truck Thursday in Broad Run, Va. The truck driver was killed and six passengers were injured aboard the train.

LABOR DAY METRO PLANS

- On Labor Day, Metro will run 7 a.m. to midnight. Parking in lots will be free.
- Expect delays stemming from track maintenance at the Fort Totten station on the Red Line and between Metro Center and McPherson Square on the Blue and Orange lines.
- A new policy going into effect allows for the temporary suspension of MetroAccess services to customers who repeatedly don't show up or fail to cancel reservations on time.

Man Who Waved Dummy Grenade Pleads Guilty

WASHINGTON | A homeless man who waved a dummy grenade at Union Station pleaded guilty to making a threat Thursday.

Juann R. Tubbs, 38, caused a scare on June 9 when he walked into a store inside the railroad station. Authorities said Tubbs displayed a silver hand grenade and threatened to pull the pin unless a worker gave him $20. The store employee, unsure if the grenade was real, said he did not have the money, and Tubbs walked out.

A short time later, officer Rodney Chambers lunged at Tubbs, eventually getting control of the device. Investigators later determined the grenade lacked the means to detonate. (AP)

Sesame Street to Teach Kids the ABCs of Finance

Elmo is heading to a new street — Wall Street. He and other characters from the popular children's television show "Sesame Street" are teaming up with Merrill Lynch & Co. to teach preschoolers the ABCs of finance. The financial literacy campaign — dubbed Investing Pays Off, or IPO — will start Sept. 10. Activities for kids in an issue of Sesame Street magazine called "Talking Cents" will include food shopping with Elmo. (AP)

Mortgage Rate at Year-High

Rates on benchmark 30-year mortgages climbed this week to the highest level in a year, slowing refinancing activity. The average rate on 30-year mortgages rose to 6.32 percent for the week ending Aug. 29, up from 6.28 percent last week, mortgage giant Freddie Mac reported Thursday. (AP)

Economy Grows In 2nd Quarter

WASHINGTON | Idling for months, the economy finally shifted into a higher gear in the second quarter as consumers and businesses bought more and the federal government ramped up military spending. The improvement reinforced the belief that the economy will pick up speed through the rest of the year.

The broadest measure of the economy's performance, gross domestic product, grew at an annual rate of 3.1 percent in the April to June quarter, according to revised figures released Thursday by the Commerce Department.

That was faster than the 2.4 percent growth rate first estimated a month ago and came after two straight quarters of lackluster economic growth. GDP measures the value of all goods and services produced within the United States.

Separately, new claims for unemployment benefits rose by 3,000 to 394,000 last week, the Labor Department said. Some of the increase may be related to people who had to delay filing applications because of the massive blackout in the Northeast and Midwest, analysts said. JEANNINE AVERSA (AP)

Bryant Won't Appeal

Arrest warrant will be unsealed as judge ordered last week

DENVER | Prosecutors in the sexual assault case against Kobe Bryant said Thursday they will not appeal a judge's order to release some sealed court records.

Last week, Judge Frederick Gannett ruled the arrest warrant and related documents could be released to the public. More detailed papers, including the arrest affidavit and search warrant, were to remain sealed. Gannett gave attorneys 10 days to appeal.

Chris Beall, an attorney representing media organizations seeking the release of all the records, said his clients will decide by the Tuesday deadline whether to appeal.

Beall has said that without seeing the other documents, the public can't know whether the sheriff's office acted properly in arresting Bryant. JON SANCHE (AP)

COUNTDOWN TO KICKOFF: Construction of a stage on the Mall for next week's NFL Kickoff Festival did not deter two people from playing frisbee there Thursday. The Redskins play the New York Jets in the season opener on Sept. 4.

Early Signs Show Coles Is a Catch

PRO FOOTBALL | Laveranues Coles appeared thoroughly double-covered when the pass was thrown. By the time the ball reached the end zone, he had simply outrun the Baltimore Ravens' defense to make the catch for a touchdown.

Even before Thursday's final exhibition game, it was obvious that Coles is the real deal — even a bargain, despite his franchise-record $13 million signing bonus.

Coles already looked like a walking guarantee of at least one huge play a game.

"We've got to throw at him a lot," Redskins coach Steve Spurrier said this week, "because he makes things happen."

Coaches and teammates say they're getting even more from Coles than they expected when the Redskins signed him away from the New York Jets with a seven-year, $35 million contract. They knew about the speed and big-play ability, but they didn't know about the hard work ethic that has rubbed off on other receivers.

Coles showed he can be a team player when he delivered a solid block for Rod Gardner on a receiver screen against the Ravens. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

The Loneliest Number

'Thirteen' cautions against the pitfalls of modern adolescence

FILM | In the arty exploitation flick "Thirteen," first-time director Catherine Hardwicke cranks up the volume to maximum shriek.

A story of a Valley girl gone bad, the film energetically samples both the classic juvenile delinquent movie that's as much a romp as a cautionary tale, and the emotionally damp after-school special about cross-generational confusion, then whips them up into a frenzy.

Tracy (Evan Rachel Wood) is a tentative girl with long, reedy limbs, a veritable baby next to the school's reigning babe, Evie Zamora (Nikki Reed), a sly, sultry beauty who looks like she was dreamed up by Jail Bait Quarterly.

Beauty and the beast in one, Evie is a classic femme fatale and monster manipulator. Evie knows what she wants (power); Tracy thinks she knows (popularity).

The new girl wants something else, too — another female to cling to instead of her mother, Melanie (Holly Hunter).

When kids go wild at the movies there's usually a moral at the end of the freakout. In "Thirteen," a couple of characters take an emotional beating, but it's happily free of the usual cant where everyone takes responsibility while no one takes any blame.

Giggly, giddy and terrifying, Tracy and her new pack nip at one another like she-wolves yet they're never less than real teens. Hardwicke has an eye for detail verging on the anthropological, and she gets these kids' lives down.

Only audiences who have been locked inside a bomb shelter for the past 50 years will be shocked by what happens in "Thirteen." Still, its ferocious energy and lead performances make it many cuts above most big-screen soap operas.

Even if you don't remember what it's like to be a kid — surging with hormones, high on freedom, desperately sad, desperately happy — the movie shoves it back in your face. MANOHLA DARGIS

(LOS ANGELES TIMES)

We like the Quarry House. A lot. It's your best bet downtown for beer and bar food, if that's what you're after, plus great bartenders and a cool jukebox full of classic rock and country.

I'm wondering if Russia House would be a good place to hit this weekend — have a friend in town and would like to be able to sit and chat in a fun atmosphere, but not really a party one.

It's not a party spot — no dance floor, the music is more acid jazz than funk, and the red silk walls don't attract a "Woo-hoo!" crowd. The pierogies are amazing, and friends were big fans of the rabbit sausage.

Toe-Tapping TV

TELEVISION | The success of the Academy Award-winning film "Chicago" has fueled a gold rush of musicals on more than just the big screen. A slew of made-for-TV musicals is set to premiere during the next year.

Among those in development are the ABC musicals "1776," "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" and "Once Upon a Mattress." Meanwhile, MTV will premiere a modern musical version of "Wuthering Heights" Sept. 14; it is also developing three musical movies, "Gloss," "Phantom" and "MTV's Hip Hopera: Faust."

A Burbank, Calif.-based company, Storyline Entertainment, is currently developing a number of ABC musicals, including "Fiddler on the Roof," "The Wiz" and "Mame" as well as a music-based TV drama for Fox called "The Rise," about a group of aspiring singers and dancers.

Renee Zellweger in "Chicago": an inspiration to small-screen moguls.

ABC, owned by the Walt Disney Co., paved the way for the comeback of TV musicals with updated remakes of "South Pacific" in 2001 and "The Music Man" this year.

When it comes to making TV musicals, the general rule seems to be to put a fresh twist on a familiar story so that it appeals to the target audience. CARLA HAY (BILLBOARD)

Another One Bites the Dust

Another limp coming-of-age story from 'Project Greenlight'

FILM | The tail has been gleefully wagging on HBO for 12 weeks going on 13 and now the dog has finally arrived.

The best thing that can be said about Project Greenlight's lethargic coming-of-age tale "The Battle of Shaker Heights" is that it's better than "Stolen Summer," last year's sacrifice at the altar of a satanic Hollywood bargain.

The deal is that Miramax promises a budget of $1 million to the writer and director of an independent film, the catch being HBO broadcasts the pain and humiliation of a chaotic shoot to a grateful nation.

The result has been TV that's smarter and considerably more involving than the mediocre films that finally result.

Given how much humiliation the film's creative personnel have endured, saying bad things about their flimsy film feels like unnecessary roughness. But "Shaker Heights" is more forgettable than objectionable.

If you're looking for an amateurish combination of "Tadpole," "The Good Girl" and "Igby Goes Down," this film has your number. Young centerpiece Kelly (Shia LeBoeuf) is yet another sullen, big-mouthed wisenheimer we're supposed to embrace because he's secretly sooo sensitive.

HARD TIMES IN THE SUBURBAN JUNGLE: Military-history fans Kelly (Shia LeBoeuf) and Bart (Elden Henson) bond over rations.

When Kelly meets fellow Shaker Heights teen military-history fan

Bart Bowland (Elden Henson), Bart helps Kelly plan revenge against a typically Neanderthal bully and introduces his friend to his stunning sister Tabby (Amy Smart).

Even as a fantasy, the liaison between a dweeby high school senior and a sophisticated graduate student is so preposterous it's incapable of holding our interest.

Whatever abilities got them this job, co-directors Rankin and Efram Potelle don't demonstrate any connection to or conviction about this material.

But, hey, the film's loss is television's gain. The participants may be clueless, but Miramax certainly has its priorities in order. KENNETH TURAN (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

Ben Lee Awaits His Big Break

MUSIC | Before he was old enough to buy cigarettes, Ben Lee was being championed by Sonic Youth's Thurston Moore. The unknown Australian 14-year-old became the kid hailed as a pop prodigy.

But Lee's American ship never came in. Today, he's just happy to see his fourth solo effort, "Hey You, Yes You," out for a year in Australia, released Stateside.

The album found a U.S. home with F2 Music. Recorded with Gorillaz-producer Dan the Automator, it sees Lee incorporating up-to-the-minute beats and electronic textures into power-pop gloss, as if he had found the midpoint between John Mayer and Beth Orton.

The closing two years ago of the Grand Royal imprint gave him a quick introduction to the business of music.

"The music industry is such crazy shape right now," Lee says. "I didn't want to go into the old model of doing business." TODD MARTENS (BILLBOARD)

BLOOD IN THE WATER

FRESHMAN DIARIES (Sun., 9:30 p.m., Showtime) The first days of college can be the most exciting time of your life — or the most lonely and dispiriting. The 10-part documentary series follows 10 students at the University of Texas in Austin. While the video diary segments can seem more "RealWorld" than real, the series does a good job of capturing the heartbreak and promise of breaking away from parents, high school pals and all things familiar.

RE-ANIMATION

LUCY MUST BE TRADED, CHARLIE BROWN (Fri., 9 p.m., ABC) The Peanuts gang returns in the new animated special set in Charlie Brown's field of nightmares — the baseball diamond. As even casual fans of the comic strip know, Charlie Brown is the hapless manager of the world's worst team.

At his best, cartoonist Charles

Schulz offered parables about futility, self-esteem and redemption in his four-panel universe. But there's a listless quality to the posthumously released "Lucy"; it feels more like a succession of daily strips than a coherent story.

DUCK DODGERS (Fri., 7:30 p.m., Cartoon Network) Daffy Duck stars as an unhappy fowl frozen in the present day and thawed 351 years hence. In typical Daffy fashion, he bamboozles himself into a job as a 24th-century starship commander, aided by his trusty sidekick Space Cadet (Porky Pig).

Up against Martian Commander X-2 (Marvin the Martian), Daffy wins the day with a combination of bluster, willful ignorance and dumb luck.

While Chuck Jones's original cartoons operated in an almost existential realm of relentless action and violence, "Dodgers" is filled with knowing references to "Star Wars" and James Bond.

CLASSIC ENEMIES IN A NEO-CLASSIC CARTOON: Daffy Duck and Marvin the Martian.

It tries to be hip, something the old Daffy was too hip to do.

SURREALITY TV

COWBOY U (Fri., 9 p.m., CMT) Six urban dwellers face the heat, the sweat and the vicissitudes of animal husbandry on the four-part series. The last contestant standing earns the title of "cowboy."

CULT CHOICES

PILLOW TALK (Sat., 8 p.m., TCM) Doris Day and Rock Hudson star in the effervescent 1959 romantic comedy.

COOL HAND LUKE (Fri., 8 p.m., TCM) Paul Newman stars in this 1967 chain-gang drama. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Some friends and I are going to see “Puppetry of the Penis” Thursday night. What restaurant recommendations do you have for five hip ladies before watching penis origami?

Giant pork burritos from Rosslyn’s Chipotle. Duh. Also sushi and such from Cafe Asia or lighter breserie fare from Village Bistro. Recap the show with cocktails at swanky Continental.

Where is the best bet to see Mars through a telescope?

You do not need a reservation or so much as a penny to enjoy the view of Mars from the University of Maryland’s Observatory — and the expert company. Call Elizabeth Warner: 301-405-6555, and be advised that the university’s observatory doesn’t have a street address. The building is located on the portion of Metzerott Road that forms a triangle with Adelphi and University Boulevard.

I read somewhere that I could walk the steps to the top of the Netherlands Carillon.

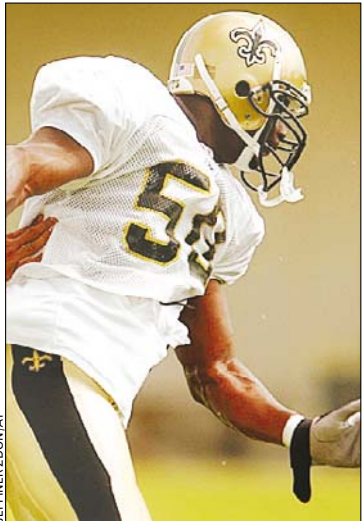

You can indeed climb the steps of the Netherlands Carillon. But check in for details before you go.

It’s football season and I need somewhere to watch LSU and the SEC and the New Orleans Saints, since I don’t have DirecTV.

Last we heard, the Tiger alumni (along with a number of other SEC teams like Bama) were gathering at the Crystal City Sports Pub to watch games. It’s likely that someone in an LSU sweatshirt can turn you on to a Saints-watching bar.

Fans want to know: Which local pub screens show the Saints marching in?

Comeback Kids

Fascinated by fallen child stars, David Spade becomes one

PERSONALITY | Comedian David Spade was born in 1964 and, like many of his generation, grew up with television.

“I was a classic dopey, TV-watching kid,” Spade says. “I watched all those stupid shows.”

Spade grew up to become a stand-up comic and actor; he didn’t spend much time thinking about the TV shows of his youth.

But in recent years, Spade began to get sucked in by the drama of the fallen former child star: the drug busts, bankruptcies and bizarre comeback attempts.

One day, his writing partner Fred Wolf had an idea for a movie: “Fred told me, ‘You could play a beat-up old child star who doesn’t know what’s going on anymore,’” Spade says.

The result is “Dickie Roberts: Former Child Star,” in which Spade plays the titular hero. Dickie was a beloved child star in the 1970s. By 2003, he’s parking cars in Hollywood and dreaming of getting his career back on track. But first, he decides, he’ll have to experience the “normal” childhood his early fame never allowed him.

Finally, Dickie Roberts (David Spade) gets a toddler’s-eye-view of Hollywood.

Several former child stars — Barry Williams, Leif Garrett, Corey Feldman, Danny Bonaduce and others — play themselves.

The intent, Spade says, was to have fun with, not to make fun of, former child stars. But he admits that at least half the actors they approached turned them down.

“It was hard. They don’t want to admit [to their fate]. They’re playing a character, sure, but it’s like, ‘You play you — and you’re a total loser.’ That’s hard.” JOSHUA MOONEY (ENW)

What happens to the child stars who don’t wind up beached on the shores of fame? Last we heard, some are doing fine.

Mayim Bialik (“Blossom”): grad student in neuroscience.

Jason Bateman (“Silver Spoons”): star of new sitcom this fall on Fox.

Mindy Cohn (“The Facts of Life”): voice of Velma in “What’s New, Scooby-Doo?”

Lookout

THIS WON'T HURT A BIT: Phil Bardsley, 17, of Stamford, Conn., watches television while he waits for a dental hygienist. Televisions, aromatherapy candles and massage chairs are among the spa-like offerings cropping up at dental offices.

Mental Novocaine

Dentists adapt office atmosphere to soothe drill-weary patients

HEALTH | When it comes to her dentist appointments, Anne Baldwin knows the drill.

Before the work begins, she grabs a Diet Pepsi from the office refrigerator and a snack from the waiting-room table. A hand-picked movie or a few minutes in the massage chair helps her calm down before the dentist is ready.

Baldwin looks forward to her trips to Advanced Dental in Berlin, Conn. "One of the main reasons I started going there was the environment," Baldwin said. "It doesn't look or feel like a stereotypical dental office."

For Baldwin, who endured years of foul-smelling dentist offices and out-of-date waiting-room magazines, the atmosphere at Advanced Dental is a breath of fresh air. To help patients relax, assistants burn scented candles and there is soothing music. It's their way of treating patients to a form of "spa dentistry," which aims to distract the fearful.

Dental spas from Beverly Hills to Berlin offer patients incentives like paraffin hand treatments, hot towels and refreshments at no additional cost.

At the Atlanta Center for Cosmetic Dentistry, the spa experience is quite advanced.

Oak paneling and oil paintings hang on brightly colored walls. Center staff bake fresh chocolate chip cookies and greet patients wearing designer suits instead of scrubs.

Still, underneath the vibrating "zen chairs," the first priority is dentistry, said center spokeswoman Laurie Hare.

"We've gone a step beyond, but I don't think we're more of a spa than a dentist," she said.

This extravagant style of care is a far cry from practices of the past, said American Dental Association spokeswoman Dr. Kimberly Harms. Twenty years ago, dentists offered little more than a complimentary toothbrush and a packet of floss.

"It's been a slow transition," Harms said. "Dentists have been focusing on the people attached to the teeth. You do everything you can to make the customer comfortable in the chair."

The amenities help quell the anxiety that keeps patients away from the dentist, she said. That means more business for dentists and fewer toothaches for patients.

CORI BOLGER (THE HARTFORD COURANT)

Urban Sprawl Begets Body Spread

HEALTH | Sprawling suburbs that make it harder for people to get around without a car may help fuel obesity: Americans who live in the most sprawling counties tend to weigh six pounds more than their counterparts in the most compact areas.

Adding to the sprawl concern: Pedestrians and bicyclists are much more likely to be killed by passing cars here than in parts of Europe where cities are engineered to encourage physical activity — and whose residents typically are skinnier and live longer than the average American.

Those are conclusions of major new studies being published Thursday that call on urban planners and zoning commissions to consider public health in designing neighborhoods.

"How you build things influences health in a much more pervasive way than I think most health professionals realize," said Dr. Richard Jackson of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, who helped edit the research, published in the American Journal of Public Health and American Journal of Health Promotion.

"Look at many new suburbs — there are not any sidewalks at all. ... The result is we just don't walk," added John Pucher of Rutgers University, who uncovered the U.S.-European disparities that CDC's Jackson called shocking.

There is growing recognition that ever-fatter Americans' tendency to be sedentary is at least partially due to an environment that discourages getting off the couch and out of the car.

Rutgers University urban planner Reid Ewing rated the amount of sprawl in 448 counties that surround metropolitan areas and then tracked CDC data on the health of 200,000 area residents.

All other factors being equal, each extra degree of sprawl meant extra weight, less walking and a little more high blood pressure, he concluded. Someone living in the most sprawling county — Geauga County outside Cleveland — would weigh 6.3 pounds more than if that same person lived in the most compact area, Manhattan.

The nation's most compact areas were New York City; San Francisco County; Jersey City, N.J.'s Hudson County; Philadelphia; and Boston's Suffolk County.

Most sprawling were outlying counties of Southeast and Midwest metro areas: Cleveland's Geauga; Goochland County outside Richmond, Va.; and Clinton County near Lansing, Mich. LAURAN NEERGAARD (AP)

TO THE EDITOR

REGARDING Wednesday's article "Bach and the Bad Boys" about the use of classical music in movies about killers: Bach's music actually contains a unique style of order and rhythm. His compositions have been found to have mathematical properties that are being examined for benefits to such mental activities as test-taking. Serial killers and other sociopaths often possess compulsive, systematic thinking and behaviors. Thus, filmmakers' pairing of them with Bach's music may be observed with merit. There may be more than meets the ear in the association.

ISN'T IT INTERESTING that we demand more accountability from the keepers of the capital city's zoo than we do from those who send our young people off to war ("Panel Formed to Study Animal Deaths at Zoo," Aug. 28)? Is it because we care more about pandas than we do about someone else's sons and daughters? If I remember correctly, we began caring about those lost in Vietnam when the sons and daughters were our own.

AL FRANKEN

Live Online

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

In his book "Lies and the Lying Liars Who Tell Them: A Fair and Balanced Look at the Right," AL FRANKEN takes on Bill O'Reilly and a multitude of others. Franken was online Thursday.

Do you have any disagreements with high-profile liberals like Barbra Streisand or Phil Donahue?

I do have a number of disagreements with other liberals, especially some Hollywood celebrities. Hollywood celebrities can make such a big difference on issues like the environment. For example, not too many people realize it, but Hollywood celebrities make up just .0000000001 percent of the world's population, and yet consume nearly 37 percent of its resources. For example, every day, 17 acres of rain forest are consumed by Barbra Streisand alone.

Are you going to host your own radio show?

I am very seriously considering doing a radio show, and working with people who are trying to put together a liberal radio network. I just want to make sure we can get enough clearances and be talking to enough people to make it worth everyone's while.

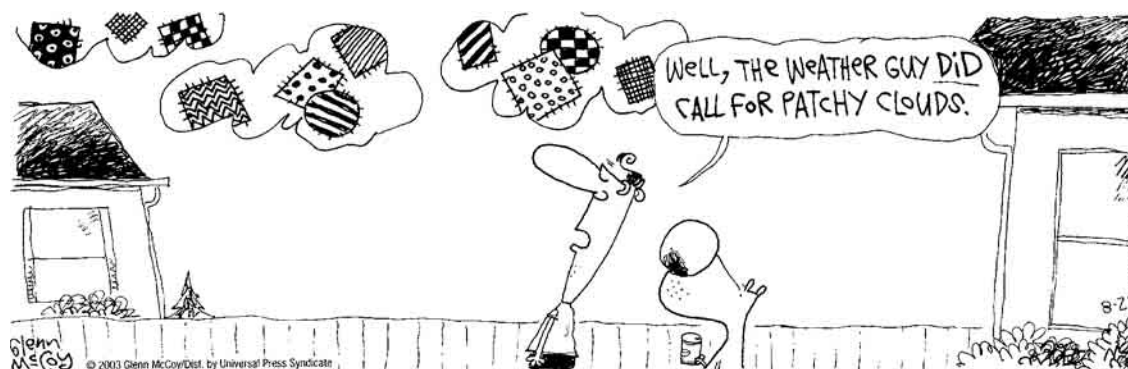

Is Clinton more honest than Bush?

It's one thing to lie about sex in the Oval Office, which I admit is bad. It is another thing to deliberately mislead the American people about why we're going to war. I think there was a case to be made to go to war in Iraq, and that we should have been treated like adults. ... I think we'd be much more willing to cut Bush slack on what's going to be a long, difficult rebuilding period if he had been truthful with us in the first place.

Did you know during your days on "Saturday Night Live" that Dennis Miller was a closet right-winger?

Dennis is heterosexual. And has two great kids. Huh? What? Oh? I didn't understand the question.

Horoscope | Stella Wilder

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You will have the opportunity to start all over again, and you don't want to let it pass you by. You'll have the chance to do it right.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Get in touch with the real you — as others are doing — and you may be surprised by what you learn from those voices deep inside.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Someone may be sending you unusual emotional signals. Take the time to decipher these messages carefully, as a mistake may prove hazardous.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — The cure for a complicated, stressful day is good, old-fashioned tender loving care. Someone is more than willing to give you what you need.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — What will bother you most is the impersonal attention of those who are asking for too much. It's time to put your foot down.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — You may be bending the rules ever so slightly to increase your own payoff. Don't fool yourself. Someone is watching.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — You must be prepared to experience your entire range of emotions before this day is out. You can maintain control, however.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Now is not the time for you to try to take anyone's place. You must strive to play your own role with greater skill and facility.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Do not become so aggressive that you actually drive away those closest to you at this time. Know when to sit back and relax.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — This is a good day to explore some new and unfamiliar territory. You may discover a hidden interest in something that can increase profits.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Though a collective effort may seem to offer more fun, you can bet that richer rewards await you if you tackle that project alone.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Watch what you say. The wrong word at the wrong time may add fuel to an already dangerous emotional fire.

TELEVISION

Sexy Spokespook

The CIA keeps a lot of secrets, but its opinion of ABC's "Alias" is not one of them. The spy show's star, JENNIFER GARNER, has been asked to contribute to an official video promoting the agency. Garner would provide an introduction to the video that the CIA shows to its prospective agents. ("It's not a commercial for the agency," Garner notes.) Who could blame them? (HOLLYWOOD REPORTER)

THEATER

Wolverine Jackman Trades His Blades for Broadway

Picturing Wolverine from the "X-Men" movies as a Broadway song-and-dance man may seem like a stretch. But before he played a comic book hero, HUGH JACKMAN performed in "Beauty and the Beast" and "Sunset Boulevard" as well as "Oklahoma!" Starting in October, he'll get the chance to show off those talents again in "The Boy from Oz," the Broadway musical in which he stars as Peter Allen, the flamboyant stage showman who died of AIDS in 1992. (AP)

Hannibal: the Early Years

Former child star MACAULAY CULKIN is poised to play a young Hannibal Lecter in a film about the serial killer's early life. Producers are now casting several Hannibals for the movie, which follows the character — famously played by Anthony Hopkins — from the age of 12 to 25. (WENN)

HEARSAY | HEEEEEEEEERE'S ELLEN!

*Special price with new activation only. Offer expires 8/31/03. Some restrictions apply.

†Limited time offer; subject to change or revocation at any time. Coverage only available on our domestic network and that of our U.S. roaming partners ("Get More Network"), but not in all areas. Your use of the service constitutes acceptance of the T-Mobile terms and conditions, including the mandatory arbitration clause. Credit approval, activation fee and 1-year service agreement required, with $200 early cancellation fee per number. Domestic long distance (but not for credit-card or operator-assisted calls) and roaming offered on the Get More Network. Applicable taxes, fees, tolls, roaming and other charges additional. Unused minutes do not carry forward to subsequent billing cycles. Any fraction of a minute used is rounded up and billed at the full-minute rate; calls are measured from the time the network begins to process the call (before the phone rings or the call is answered) through its termination of the call. Weekends defined as midnight Fri. through midnight Sun. Nights are defined as 9pm to 6:59am Mon. to Thu. and 9pm to 11:59 pm Fri. Calls rate as night or weekend if the call begins during the defined hours. Rates are for domestic use only. Additional restrictions apply; see printed materials for details.
